2. Requirement results

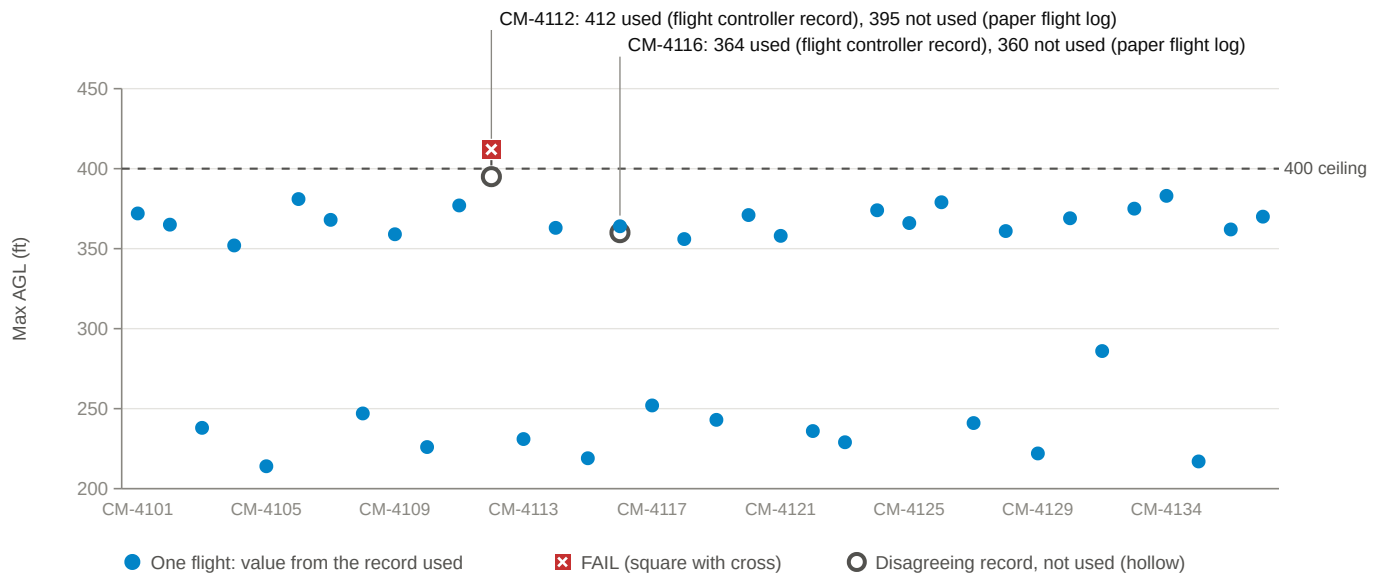

Each cell is one flight against one requirement, as evaluated against the evidence in this package.
The text matrix is in appendix B.

Colour and mark show how the records compared with each requirement; they are not a determination of compliance.

137 PASS, 7 FAIL, 0 undetermined, 0 not applicable; 144 of 144 provisional (hatched). FAIL: CM-4112 AUTH-MAX-ALTITUDE; CM-4114 AUTH-PIC-MEDICAL; CM-4117 AUTH-PIC-MEDICAL; CM-4121 AUTH-PIC-MEDICAL; CM-4103 P107-RECURRENT-TRAINING; CM-4110 P107-RECURRENT-TRAINING; CM-4119 P107-RECURRENT-TRAINING.

3. Altitude against the ceiling

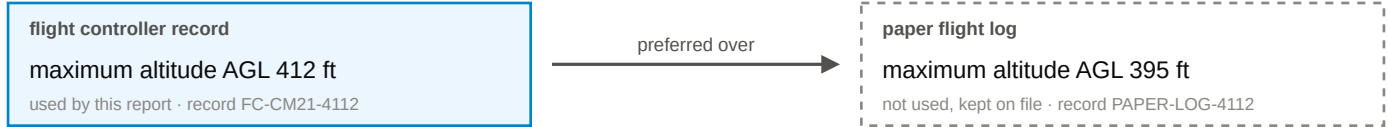

Dashed line: the altitude limit in your authorization. Each flight's value is from the record the report used.

Above the ceiling of 400: CM-4112 (412). Source conflicts: CM-4112 412 (flight controller record, used) vs 395 (paper flight log, not used); CM-4116 364 (flight controller record, used) vs 360 (paper flight log, not used).

3.1 Source conflicts

Where two of your records of the same flight disagree, this report uses the one your documented source priority (configured with Aegis) puts first. Both records stay on file.

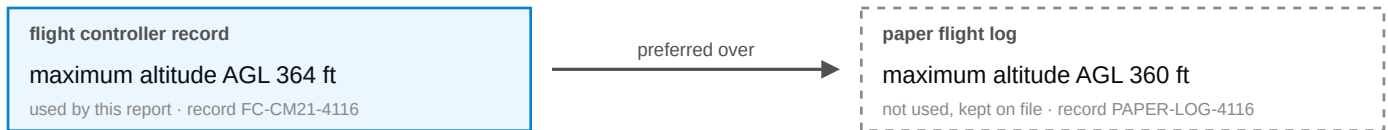

CM-4112 · AUTH-MAX-ALTITUDE · telemetry summary

Your records disagree. The report used the flight controller record, following your documented source priority (configured with Aegis).
Result: FAIL. Both records stay on file; only the one used was compared with the requirement.

CM-4112: the flight controller record (maximum altitude AGL 412 ft) and the paper flight log (maximum altitude AGL 395 ft) disagree. The report used the flight controller record, following your documented source priority (configured with Aegis).

CM-4116 · AUTH-MAX-ALTITUDE · telemetry summary

Your records disagree. The report used the flight controller record, following your documented source priority (configured with Aegis).
Result: PASS. Both records stay on file; only the one used was compared with the requirement.

CM-4116: the flight controller record (maximum altitude AGL 364 ft) and the paper flight log (maximum altitude AGL 360 ft) disagree. The report used the flight controller record, following your documented source priority (configured with Aegis).
